Love basketball? Catch a local match at home

The Lake County Journals is promoting an action-packed viewing opportunity. And you won't even have to leave your home to catch the event.

The Grayslake Central varsity boys basketball team will take on Jacobs in Algonquin at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 5.

Our sister paper the Northwest Herald will broadcast the game live on www.McHenryCountySports.com.

To view the match, just visit the Web site during the game. A link will take you to the event.

This will be the first regular sea-

Interested in helping those in need this holiday season?

Check out page 6A of your Journal. A list of food drives and toy collections appear on the page.

The list is a supplement to the story that appears on page 3A, which discusses the state of local food pantries given the slumping economy.

Reporters Colin Selbo and Stephanie Lehman interviewed many pantry organizers for the piece.

It's just one example of the community-focused stories that we like to provide at the Lake County Journals.

Also in your paper, you will find an article about helping local seniors this season on page 9A.

A story about remembering lost loved ones during the holidays appears on that page as well.

Information about a production of the classic play "A Christmas Carol" appears on that page. The play will be performed in Antioch.

Veteran receives medals after delay

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

LINDENHURST - It was a day of smiles, hugs and even some tears for the Bybee family.

But, ultimately, it was a day for Ed Bybee.

Years after leaving in the U.S. Army during WWII, Bybee finally was honored in a ceremony Nov. 29 where he received a series of medals that he was supposed to receive following his service.

A Lindenhurst resident since 1957, Bybee recorded a series of interviews and stories in 2005 about his service during WWII on a two-disc CD that resides in the Library of Congress. It was during those interviews his family learned of the missing medals.

"He didn't talk about it," said Kristina Luna, Bybee's great-great niece. "Since he did [the interviews], that's the first time we knew he was missing them." After the war, Bybee was issued lapel ribbons in place of the medals that were supposed to follow. But when some paperwork got lost, Luna said, Bybee never received the medals.

Bybee's son Dave Bybee said his father and the family waited a long time for the medal presentation to come.

"[Bybee] was told he would get the medals later. Well, later never came," he said.

Honors received by Bybee

- Bronze Star and Purple Heart
- Good Conduct Medal
- American Campaign Medal
- WWII Victory Medal
- Army of Occupation and German Clasp
- Combat Infantry Badge 1st Award
- Honorable Service Lapel Button WWII
- European-African Middle Eastern Campaign Medal and Bronze Star Attachment

Luna, who was instrumental in ensuring Bybee was issued the medals, said the family worked with Congressman Ray LaHood on getting Bybee the recognitions. Working with the congressman's office, Luna said, helped to expedite the process.

Saturday's ceremony was attended by more than 100 family members and well-wishers. It was originally scheduled for October, but the 90-year-old Bybee fell ill, which delayed the ceremony.

Bybee's grandson Mark Bybee was one of the family members given the opportunity to present the elder Bybee with a long-lost medal. He praised his grandfather during the ceremony for defending the country and preserving the nation's freedom.

"Not to get [the medals] was kind of heart wrenching," Mark Bybee said following the ceremony. "To get it at an age where you'd never thought he would get it was exceptional." Bybee also spoke of the war stories his grandfather - who served during the Normandy landing and the Battle of the Bulge, among other battles - is known to tell with great conviction.

"It was incredible to hear the way he would explain. It was so informative; he could almost put you there," he said.

For his part, Bybee said he was thankful for the chance to receive the medals he earned long ago.

"I think if I earned them, I should get them," he said.

Food pantries struggle to meet demand

Economic downturn finds new families in need of help amidst decrease in donations

By STEPHANIE LEHMAN
slehman@nwnewsgroup.com and COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

When the economy is down, not everything hits rock bottom. Some things tend to rise, including the need for items at local food pantries.

Pantries across Lake County have seen a rise in the need for food and a decrease in monetary donations, said Dennis Smith, executive director and chief operating officer of the Northern Illinois Food Bank. The Northern Illinois Food Bank is a nonprofit organization that serves more than 520 food-assistance sites in 13 northern Illinois counties.

"This year we are indeed seeing more and more people who are in need of food support," Smith said. "And unfortunately, with the circumstance of the economy, it looks to me as if that this is just going to continue."

According to the food bank's service data, the number of families served in Lake County was up 29 percent this October when compared to last October, Smith said.

Unemployment in Lake County has increased from 4.6 percent to 6.5 percent in the last year, and 7,816 Lake County homes foreclosed during that same period, Smith said.

"Those are all indicators that more and more people are going to be in need of food support," he said.

From a food standpoint, donations are down 8 percent versus last year, Smith said. Although more people are giving, the average gift is less than in the past.

"We have, in our direct mail for the season, received more individual gifts than we've received at the same time last year," he said. "However, the gift is down from $52 to $41 dollars."

Sixty-five percent of food pantries are based out of churches, Smith said. They, too, have been hit hard this past year.

Faith Food Pantry in Zion, for example, served 2,360 people for Thanksgiving in just two days - that's about 200,000 pounds of food, Smith said.

"They are averaging 70 new families each week. And we are seeing the same trends occur, unfortunately, throughout the county and across the region," he said.

On the rise

Amber Abbott manages the Christian

Outreach Of Lutherans food pantries in Waukegan and Ingleside. She said 119 new families sought food assistance in the first week of November alone.

Coupled with the loss of donations from corporate sponsors, the pantry has had a rough time.

"[Donations] have dropped off. Our donations are definitely on the decline," Abbott said.

But the increased need she has seen in recent months did not come as a surprise, she said.

"Once we saw those gas prices shoot up, I saw it coming. We start pushing for bigger food drives. We just get bombarded," she said.

Even with the drop in donations, Abbott said, the number of meals served at COOL's two sites in the county has increased every month since January.

In Grant Township; officials report the number of families seeking food assistance has doubled in recent months.

Dee Ferrigan, who runs the township food pantry, expects to see further increases as the holiday season continues.

"Especially with the holidays coming up, the need is there. They want to provide gifts, and we're doing the back-up with the food," she said.

The pantry currently provides food for 150 families in the township, Ferrigan said, but is prepared to serve up to 250 families this year. She attributed the increased need to higher unemployment rates and more families facing foreclosures.

New faces

Lake Villa Township Supervisor Dan Venturi said the need for food and other nonperishable items is coming from families who never needed assistance in the past.

"[We see] a lot of new families and people you wouldn't expect," he said. "People who had stable jobs for a long period of time."

The Rev. Michael Pimpo, who runs the faith-based People Lending Assistance Network food pantry in Round Lake, has seen the same demographics asking for assistance.

"The shift is going deeper in the economy," Pimpo said. "[People] are saying, 'I don't know why I have to be here, but we can't make it. My hours have been reduced at work.'"

Of the 1,000 to 1,200 people who walk through PLAN's doors every month, the largest demographic group served by age is children 18 and younger, Pimpo said. Seniors 60 and older represent the lowest age demographic of people served.

niors 60 and older represent the lowest age demographic of people served.

"That's telling me there are parents my age with kids my age who we're helping," the 40-year-old minister said.

The Lake Villa Township food pantry normally serves about 700 families a year, Venturi said, but is expecting to serve more than 1,000 this year. During the week of Thanksgiving, the food pantry distributed holiday food baskets to 70 families, up from 45 families in previous years, he said, with additional increases expected during the Christmas season.

Venturi has served as township supervisor since 2001 and said this year's increases are the highest he's seen. Fortunately, he reported, the pantry is seeing some donations from new sources this year.

"We're seeing some new awareness for the need of the food pantry. We're actually getting some food we normally wouldn't have gotten," Venturi said. "When the economy starts going down, it doesn't take long to realize that the food pantry is going up."

Shirley Christian, the Avon Township supervisor who oversees the Avon Township

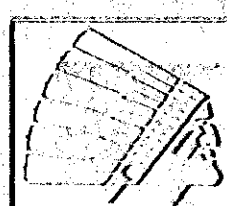

Food Pantry, said her regular contributors have continued their giving, despite the economic drop.

"From what I've observed, there are more people who are reaching out and giving to the pantry now because they realize how difficult it is for some people in the community to provide [for themselves]," she said. "I think everyone is struggling, but I haven't really seen a drop in the donations that we've been getting."

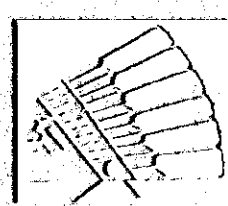

Grant Township Supervisor Kay Starostovic said residents recognize the need food pantries are facing. She believes people are trying their best to support local food pantries.

"It's probably going to be OK, but it's just the unknown," Starostovic said.

Five donors to monument will win Armed Forces flags

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE – Community members who donate $50 or more through Dec. 15 to the College of Lake County Veterans Memorial Monument will be in a drawing to receive one of the five service flags that were the first to fly over the monument in 2008.

"This is a perfect opportunity to honor a veteran with a long-lasting Christmas gift," said Wayne J. Maczko, veterans memorial task force chairman, in a release. "Winners will receive one of the service flags – Army, Marines, Navy, Air Force or Coast Guard – which were the first to be flown over the new monument."

Work continues on the monument, which features the seals of all five branches of the U.S. military, three flagpoles and 3,000 bricks honoring servicemen. The model for a life-sized bronze sculpture depicting a member of the Armed Forces paying his respects at the grave marker of a fallen hero has been completed by artist Cindy Seng of Libertyville. About $20,000 more in donations is needed to have the statue cast at a foundry.

To date, about 200 bricks have been engraved, and donations for the memorial bricks are financing the cost of casting the statue.

Engraved bricks are $50 for one or $125 for three. The donation includes engraving a name, rank, branch of service and dates of service on the bricks.

To order a brick or make a tax deductible contribution, contact the College of Lake County Foundation at 847-543-2901 or visit www.clcillinois.edu/vets.

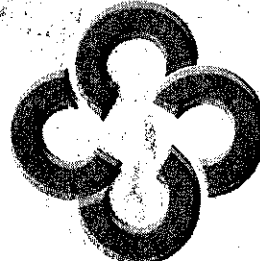

To mail a contribution, send it to CLC Foundation, Veterans Memorial Monument, at 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake, IL 60030.

Be Santa to seniors at holiday

Group seeks to brighten season for area elderly

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

WAUKEGAN – The area office of Home Instead Senior Care, the world's largest provider of nonmedical home care and companionship for older adults, has joined several local senior-care agencies and Sunset Foods, Community Trust Credit Union and Star Hospice to provide presents to seniors who otherwise might not receive a gift this holiday season.

In the past four years since introducing the "Be a Santa to a Senior" program, Home Instead Senior Care has helped provide more than 930,000 gifts to 568,055 seniors.

"Be a Santa to a Senior each year sets new records in contributions of gifts to a group that often is forgotten during the hectic holiday season," Cindy Madson, owner of the Home Instead Senior Care office serving Lake County, said in a release. "While children are the beneficiaries of many holiday programs, people often don't think about the isolated and lonely seniors who need to be remembered as well during this season."

Through the program, participating local nonprofit organizations identify needy and isolated seniors in the community and provide those names to Home Instead Senior Care.

Christmas trees, which are up now in Sunset Foods in Libertyville, Community Trust Credit Union in Gurnee and Vista Star Hospice in Waukegan, feature ornaments with the first names only of the seniors and their respective gift requests.

Holiday shoppers can pick up an ornament, buy items on the list and return them unwrapped to the store, along with the ornament attached. The program runs through Friday, Dec. 12.

Businesses are encouraged to contact the local Home Instead Senior Care office at 847-543-8881 about adopting groups of seniors.

For tree locations, or for more information about the program, log on to www.beasantatoasenior.com.

'Cultural Fusion' set at college

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE – Come experience "Cultural Fusion," a multicultural entertainment experience sponsored by the College of Lake County Multicultural Student Center.

The show will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, in the C005 Auditorium on the Grayslake Campus, 19351 W. Washington St.

"It's a show designed to showcase the variety of cultures represented at CLC," said Jorge Tennin, coordinator of the Multicultural Student Center, in a release. A total of 20 acts will perform.

Members of several multicultural groups will show off their talents in dance, music, singing, acting and art. The clubs include Asian Student Alliance, Black Student Union, Latino Alliance, South Asia Student Alliance and the International Club.

Tickets are $4 for the general public and $2 to CLC students with a CLC ID.

Tickets are available at the door.

A variety of food and beverages will be available for purchase.

For information, call 847-543-2343.

Remembrance event set Dec. 14 in Fox Lake

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

"A Time of Remembrance" will take place at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14, at the K.K. Hamsher Funeral Home, 12 N. Pistakee Lake Road, in Fox Lake.

Debbie Hamsher-Glen, funeral director and manager, said the event will be a time to remember those who have passed during the year, as well as an opportunity to assist families during the holiday season.

"It is always difficult to lose a loved one," Hamsher-Glen said in a news release.

"The holidays are especially challenging. We want to invite all those families we have served this year to come and join us for this special time."

There will be a multi-media presentation listing the names of those who have passed during 2008.

Holiday music will be included. Light refreshments will be served.

For more information or to reserve a space for family, call the funeral home at 847-587-2100.

Shop, share event aids restoration of 1925 firetruck

Mundelein gets ready for centennial celebration

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

MUNDELEIN – As a fundraiser for the restoration of Old No. 1, the 1925 Stoughton fire truck that was donated to Mundelein by Cardinal Mundelein in 1925, the Mundelein Centennial Fire Truck Restoration Committee is sponsoring a Shop and Share event at area Jewel-Osco grocery stores.

The Shop and Share dates are Dec. 8 through 10 and 15 through 17.

On these dates, shoppers at a local Jewel-Osco Store will have 5 percent of their total purchase donated to the village of Mundelein Fire Truck Restoration Project simply by completing the Shop and Share coupon.

Shop and Share coupons are available at the Mundelein Village Hall or on-line at www.mundelein.org.

Coupons can be printed from the village Web site and brought to any area Jewel store on one of these dates.

Present the coupon at the checkout aisle.

Mundelein celebrates its 100th anniversary on Feb. 1, 2009. The restoration of Old No. 1 is a "legacy" project sponsored by the Centennial Committee.

The restored truck will return to ceremonial service for the Mundelein Fire Department and will be housed at Fire Station Headquarters, 1000 N. Midlothian Road.

With proper funding, the truck will be unveiled on Oct. 17, 2009, at the Centennial Community Banquet at St. Mary of the Lake Seminary.

Old No. 1 was kept in service until 1945. In 1946 it was sold, changing hands many times before it ended up in a barn in Maryland.

In 1994, retired Mundelein Fire Lt. Jim Carew drove to Maryland and saved the old truck from the scrap yard.

On Sept. 22, 2008, the Village Board authorized the purchase and restoration of Old No. 1.

Views on Dental Health

Dr. Brian Gniadek & Associates in the Linden Plaza in Lindenhurst

TAP, TAP, TAP

When a dental nerve becomes inflamed, the membrane attaching the root to its bony socket may also become inflamed and swollen. This can cause the tooth to push out of the socket slightly. Bringing the teeth together will then be painful although it may be difficult to determine which tooth is actually hurting. The dentist may perform a percussion test by tapping gently on each tooth with an object, such as the handle of a dental mirror, to locate the one that is sensitive.

This response indicates what is wrong - but doesn't necessarily indicate that root canal treatment is required to correct the problem. Teeth become sensitive to biting pressure and percussion from clenching and grinding or from minor changes in position. Traumatic meeting of teeth (occlusion) may result from bone loss around tooth.

Adjusting the bit by selective grinding on the crown of the sensitive tooth or the opposing teeth may be sufficient to eliminate the problem. A dental guard may be helpful in minimizing pressure.

Health Department issues pertussis alert

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Lake County Health Department is alerting the medical community and the public about an increase in pertussis cases (also known as whooping cough) in Lake County.

As of Nov. 20, officials reported 82 confirmed and probable cases this year, with the majority of them occurring in children ages 5 to 11 years old. The pertussis situation is compounded by the usual increase in colds and flu and pertussis may be confused with those infections, officials said.

"Pertussis is a highly contagious, serious illness that can affect anyone," said Irene Pierce, executive director of the health department, in a release. "As the holiday season approaches and people have more close contact with their friends and family it's especially important to remember to wash your hands regularly and cover your cough. If you are sick, stay home and avoid contact with infants, especially those who are under 6 months of age, and pregnant women."

Health officials urge those who have had a cough lasting more than a week to consult their physicians, especially if the cough tends to be worse at night and sounds different than a typical upper respiratory cough.

The first symptoms are similar to those of a common cold accompanied by coughing. Over-the-counter medicines are ineffective in treating this illness, which can last for several months.

The cough gradually becomes worse, which can end in vomiting or the characteristic, "whoop." Early treatment is important.

For vaccinations, contact a health-care provider or the health department's immunization program at 847-377-8470.

DAR honors 5 local high school students

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Ansel Brainerd Cook Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution will honor five high school seniors as recipients of the DAR Good Citizens Award.

The faculty at each high school chose the senior who best demonstrated good citizenship in the home, school and community.

DAR Good Citizens chairman Mary Engstrom has announced that the Good Citizens Award winners for the 2008-09 school year are Oliver Rose, a student at Stevenson High School; Anna Brodarick, a student at Carmel Catholic High School; Emily Buehler, a student at Libertyville High School; Byron Whitson, a student at Mundelein High School; and Kirsten Groody, a student at Vernon Hills High School.

Three of the five students participated in the optional scholarship contest, which requires a submission of an essay; a list of activities and awards; school transcripts and a description of how they incorporated the qualities of a good citizen in their lives.

The chapter will honor the students at an awards program in February.

Newspapers as government watchdog is a role to be preserved

Thomas Jefferson once said, "Were it left for me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I shall not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

I'm sure that he knew that both government and newspapers would survive and thrive during his lifetime. He made the statement to underscore the importance of newspapers in protecting the public interests against abuses of government.

We are at a time in our history where something never before contemplated is feared to happen. Just a few years ago, I wrote in this column that the trend toward local family-owned newspapers being merged by media giants threatened the existence of community newspapers and independent, objective journalism.

Now, an even greater fear is whether newspapers, no matter what size, can survive the troubling economy and the Internet

John S. Matijevich

Web-world blitz.

When I read recently that Chicago's Sun-Times, the parent of both the News-Sun and Pioneer Press, reported one of its largest quarterly losses, I realized that it was the sign of the times across media markets.

When I served in the legislature, I subscribed to the Christian Science Monitor because it ran many in-depth, well-researched series on many public issues.

Now, the Monitor is no longer published as a daily, printing only a weekend edition and the daily is run online. Its circulation took a nose-dive to 50,000 copies, so operating a daily newspaper no longer was affordable.

It is a tragic reality that some of the factors that attributed to the economic meltdown and brought many corporations to their knees have also negatively impacted media markets.

I'm talking about the era of deregulation which was advanced as the road to free-market, competitive capitalism.

We may never go back to the days when media giants were restricted on how many newspapers, or radio companies, that they could own.

Nor will we return to the time when radio stations were required by law to file papers with the Federal Communications Commission that their businesses served the public interest.

The decline of newspaper businesses has been one of the saddest downward spirals of recent decades. In spite of what many believe is a public disdain against newspapers and the media, every era of America has relied on newspapers to be the public's watchdog against public corruption and government abuses of excesses.

At a time when government is bailing out Wall Street at the expense of Main Street, you can be assured that government leaders never will bail out newspapers forced out by the ill-gotten policies that brought on the media giants.

What an irony that the moguls that engineered media mergers have become victims of their own greed.

They are now facing the music of failure after years of playing their own tune.

The public interest would be best served if the newspaper business and journalistic excellence were revived.

I dread the day when there would be "government without newspapers."

Habitat for Humanity will dedicate 6 homes in Waukegan area

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

WAUKEGAN – Habitat for Humanity Lake County will dedicate six homes on Saturday, Dec. 6, in Waukegan.

The families who receive the homes will celebrate this Christmas in their own place for the first time.

Five homes are newly completed in the Carter Crossing subdivision and one is a rehabbed structure at Kristan Avenue.

These dedications will be especially rewarding for sponsors and volunteers as they see the families they worked with experience the special joy of having their new homes completed in time for the Christmas season.

Habitat for Humanity homes are sponsored by corporations, churches, and community groups. Sponsors raise funds and supply volunteers to build a house.

The sponsors of four of these homes – Hewitt, Baxter, Thrivent Builds (a program of Thrivent Financial for Lutherans) and New Trier High School – have sponsored homes with Habitat for several years.

One house is sponsored by HCS, a special family project.

A Lake County family and relatives from around the country have joined together to sponsor a house in honor of a loved one.

The last sponsor, The Habitolics, is a group of longtime volunteers who chose their name because they "have the Habitat habit."

They specialize in Habitat rehabs houses.

Habitat for Humanity International is a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry that works to eliminate poverty housing by building simple, decent homes.

The group uses volunteer labor and donated materials to complete construction of the homes.

Habitat houses are sold to families in need at no profit with no-interest mortgages.

Families in the program also invest hundreds of hours of labor in building their house and other Habitat needs.

For more information about the program, call 847-623-1020 or visit www.habitatlc.org.

Relatives are coming to town

It's that time of year. Seasonal lyrics stalk your brain. You hear the same song 397 times. But, worse, after receiving one particular phone call, you start to hear your own version of those holiday lyrics. They sound like this: "You better watch out, you should start to cry, you better hide stuff, I'm telling you why: Relatives Are Coming to Town."

Last year mine showed up. Stayed a week. With twin boys, age 4. It was to be their first holiday visit, and I'd looked forward to it.

Then they arrived. The exhausted parents dragged themselves and enough provisions for a year's stay into the house, while two turbo-charged boys bounded in and announced in unison, "We haven't eaten for DAYS." I questioned the validity of their statement since, when I bent to kiss them, they both had fresh McDonald's breath.

The starving duo proceeded to grab anything they could from the fridge, including raw pot roast, which I extricated from their fists. Finding nothing more of interest in there, one climbed the shelves of the pantry where he latched onto a bottle of chocolate amaretto liqueur. As I pried the bottle out of his hands he screamed so loud the house vibrated. "I wan dis chocolate milk!"

"Don't think so," I said. As I returned the bottle to the shelf, I saw the other twin had seized a toy sword that Santa brought him early. He pretended to slice his brother.

"He twied to swice me," the brother howled. (I wondered if I could slit my throat with that toy sword.)

"Give him a timeout," the mother told me, as she and the dad scaled suitcases, blankets, backpacks and gifts to find a spare bedroom in record time. "We need to rest," she called back. I didn't blame them; in fact, I wanted to lie down next to them.

But I was in charge. Before I could utter the command, "time out!" the whirling dervishes climbed atop my couch, joined hands and yelled, "Geronimo!" "Be careful!" I warned. The floor is hard.

They didn't listen. The two jumped together, hitting the floor and each other simultaneously.

"He made me bwweed!" one screamed. The blood was minimal.

"Go to bed!" I said. "But it's 4 o'clock," the one who could tell time protested.

"I don't care!" I yelled, reaching for the amaretto liqueur.

The week went by much along the same tone. Twice I called a friend from my closet so she could talk me out of the fetal position.

This year, November passed and I'd not heard any talk of a visit from them.

Because of that, what I did hear were sweet lyrics in my head: "It's the most wonderful time of the year." Until Yesterday.

"Hi," two little voices said on the phone, "we're coming for Christmas. FOR 10 DAYS!"

Same tune. New lyrics: "It's the least wonderful time of the year...."

How WEST was one

Kanye gets personal on 'Heartbreak'

By BRYAN WAWZENEK
bwawzenek@nwnewsgroup.com

Kanye West has built a fortress of solitude called "808s & Heartbreak." It's made of sadness and synthesizers, tears and techno, agony and Auto-Tune.

A lot has happened in the year since we last heard from Mr. West on the triumphant, often jubilant "Graduation." The "Stronger" star's public profile continued to rise as his personal life disintegrated. His mother died from complications during a plastic surgery procedure.

His engagement to designer Alexis Phifer was broken off.

West's fourth album finds him shattered and angry, lashing out at his former fiancée and taking swipes (and whiffing) at the loneliness that swirls around him. On "808s," pop music's biggest braggart becomes a vulnerable, lovesick mess — desperate for hope, for affection, for truth to fill the darkness.

Kanye West's new CD, "808s & Heartbreak," is a departure for the rapper because it mostly features him singing.

New album characterized by singer's emotions

• KANYE

He sounds like he'd trade everything for a family on the cello-underscored "Welcome to Heartbreak": "My friend showed me pictures of his kids / and all I could show him is pictures of my cribs."

Later, on "Coldest Winter," he wonders, "Will I ever love again?"

To his artistic credit, he doesn't mask that vulnerability with slickly sampled productions or pop-culture referencing raps — two of the things that made him a household name.

Instead, West enhances his uncertainty by pushing himself completely out of his comfort zone, and making his craziest move yet.

The Chicago rapper barely raps on this record, singing most of his depressed diary entries with the help of pitch-correcting Auto-Tune (think T-Pain, or Cher's "Believe"). Robo-Kanye croons about his broken heart over a mix of bleeping synths, ominous pianos, jungle drums, moaning choirs and gorgeous strings.

"Love Lockdown's" chorus thunders along on the strength of a storm trooper drumline. The deceptively elegant "RoboCop" might be West's finest moment as an arranger. The tune's glittering wall of sound shimmers as West shakes his head at romantic discord.

There's a lot of space in these arrangements, which sometimes exist without percussion ("See You in My Nightmares") or go completely silent for a few moments ("Amazing"). That means plenty of room for West's broken soul to bounce around. His pleading cries echo in the empty spaces.

Make no mistake, West's fearless thirst for reinvention will come at a price. And he knows it.

On "Street Lights," West sings, "I know my destination, but I'm just not there in the streets." The guy whose fan base stretches from the ghetto corner to the suburban cul-de-sac, from hip-hop heads to rock 'n' rollers, knows he's reaching past the rap game and figures the "streets" aren't about to follow him.

He's probably right, considering the tepid response of the crowd on the album's finale — a live track featuring West's sad and angry stream-of-consciousness rant to a mostly mystified audience. "I just want to be a real boy," he shouts as he unravels on "Pinocchio Story."

It often sounds as if he's singing to an empty stadium, flinging his deflated heart into the rafters and then waiting to see if it floats back down to him.

For the first time since he arrived as "The College Dropout," West seems very small.

And the only thing tying that record to "808s" is West's overabundance of emotion and the sense that this man puts everything he's got into everything he does. How else could this album — featuring a sad-sack, rich rapper who sings about his troubles with the help of a novelty effect — end up being so repeatedly worthwhile?

At this turning point in his career, and in his life, West has let us into his brain. While we're in there, we find out that West isn't as good as he brags.

He's better.

Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers Opens In Grayslake

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

For the past two years Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers has been satisfying hearty appetites in the Waukegan area. Now Jack's is offering the same generous portions and extensive menu at its second location on Center Street just off Route 83 in Grayslake.

Although the Grayslake restaurant has only been open four weeks, customers are already turning into regulars. Betsy Poggense of Grayslake said she has eaten there a few times because of the wide variety of meals. She also likes the vegetarian selections and the fact that free soup is offered with meals. Her kids enjoy watching sports on the two wide screen televisions.

The restaurant itself is bright and cheery with a patriotic red, white, and blue color scheme and walls of windows to let in sunshine. "I like to make everyone feel at home," said co-owner Anna Papandreou. With seating for about 120, Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers has ample room for large parties.

Service was fast and friendly when I ordered a hamburger and shake from the counter up front. The burger was huge, hot, and juicy, and the shake was thick enough to almost require a spoon. The complimentary soup was homemade. And the price was reasonable.

It was hard to choose among the many appetizing selections on the menu. There are all types of appetizers, salads, sandwiches, hot dogs, burgers, full dinners such as roasted chicken with French fries and salad, gyros, submarines, Italian specialties like chicken parmesan, a Mexican menu, seafood, paninis, and, of course, a long list of specialty pizzas. You can also cap off your meal with tempting desserts like cheesecake or tiramisu.

Elias Papandreou, son of owners Anna and Louie Papandreou, said that both restaurants are family run. He said the restaurants are named after his brother Jack, who is also involved in the business. Elias noted that his parents have been in the restaurant business for over 25 years.

Elias felt the key to their success was that "people can come here and get whatever they feel like at a reasonable price." Anna said, "you can feed a whole family for about $10.00 by ordering our pizza special and pop." She added that since they offer carry out and delivery, "the whole restaurant menu is available to go." Elias also said they offer catering, and have a catering vehicle with an oven and cooler to keep food at the right temperature.

Based on the current success of Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers, Elias says they may be adding more locations in the future. Just remember, whatever location you visit, come prepared with a hearty appetite.

Lake County, You're RadioActive

98.3 FM WRLR is your radio station! It's run by RadioActive Lake County residents like Dominick Mahoney, Zach Mahoney and George Buchardt (St. Joseph Mass, Sundays at 11 AM). These guys are just a few of the many volunteers who do programs for you. There's talk shows with local news, issues and current events. The music is quite diverse too, both new and old songs, with live on air performances and interviews with local bands. There's even live coverage of high school games.
